

EFFORT TO BLOCK AMMUNITION PLAN KILLED IN HOUSE

Tiffany, Toney, Willis, Winston, Woodward, Speaker Cox—43.

Applause for Gunn.

Mr. Brown moved to reconsider. Mr. Woodward, of Norfolk, protested against wasting further time in consideration of this bill, as definite assurances had been given that the Senate would not consider it. On a show of hands the motion to reconsider was rejected, 41 to 31. Mr. Gunn declined to ask for a roll call, saying that he would not further consume the time of the House. The House then proceeded to a round of hand clapping for his successful fight and for his graceful refusal to delay the business of the House by dilatory tactics when once the decision had been against him.

At the request of its patrons, House bill No. 521, to amend the charter of the city of Norfolk, was dismissed from the calendar, the point having been covered by a Senate bill. Mr. Landrum moved to amend the bill to delete the clause which provides for a new charter for the town of Blackstone, which was adopted.

Among the bills passed at the afternoon session without debate was one growing out of the bill for the purpose of appropriating $1,075 to the County of Wythe to reimburse the county for the amount paid the judge sent by the Governor to provide in the Allegheny County, which was moved from Carroll County to Wytheville.

Amend Insurance Act.

There was a prolonged and at times heated debate at the afternoon session over House bill No. 94, which was finally passed. The bill amends the act in regard to the Bureau of Insurance, and allows insurance companies doing business in this State to post actual company bonds in lieu of putting actual company bonds in the hands of the Commissioner of Insurance. The bill made that the bill would lower the market for Virginia bonds, would cause a large amount of collateral to be taken on the market, and would thereby make business for the big surety companies.

On the other hand, Judge Martin Williams, Mr. Milstead and others contended that the bill would open an avenue to do business in this State, companies which are now barred by the cause of the requirements of the law that they must post collateral equal to a certain proportion of their entire business. In this State, Judge Williams said, the long fight against the Southeastern Trust Association, which he described as the most gigantic trust in the South. Several members agreed and said that since the repeal of the act which forbids such rates in the country districts, rates more than doubled. Mr. Milstead told of the efforts in Newport News some time ago to prosecute criminally those engaged in a conspiracy to keep up insurance rates. The present law, it was stated, while intended to protect safety by admitting only strong, well-financed companies, had resulted in stifling all competition, and a constant increase in rates. Mr. Oliver described the present insurance rate-fixing association as a "gigantic trust," and said that members had been receiving telegrams all afternoon to urge them to vote against this bill. The bill was passed.

Wants Big Bills Expedited.

Realizing that a large amount of business must die on the House calendar for lack of time for its consideration this week, Mayor Stubbs proposed yesterday morning, since the Committee on Rules had not seen fit to report on his resolution instructing that body to pick out and recommend to the House a list of important bills that should be given precedence, that the House begin consideration forthwith of the primary bill, the game bill, and the proposed amendment to the Constitution of Virginia, and continue to discuss them until disposed of. While the Democratic party had no announced platform, he considered that the people of Virginia had expressed their wishes in regard to these items of legislation, members had promised them their support in their individual platforms, and should not let the time go by with lesser matters without bringing them first to a final vote.

The House declined to accept the suggestion yesterday, because that was the last day that the House could consider House bills under the rules, but the Stubbs resolution giving preference to important bills may be renewed this morning. Mr. Gunn announced that he would move that the session be extended for five days, as members were being asked to vote on bills they had not had time to read and knew nothing about.

THE HOUSE

The House devoted practically the entire forenoon to the final passage of House bills which will now go to the Senate. A large number were rushed through without debate or the reading of the full titles, the drafting of one roll call after another being almost continuous. The House calendar showed 222 House bills on their second reading, which cannot now be reached at this session, and are dead. Some of the bills which companion bills to Senate bills yet under consideration, but the great majority will not be heard of again.

Delegate T. C. Commins, of King William County, asked yesterday to have the roll on the Pennington anti-jug bill corrected. Mr. Commins had been listed as voting no. He voted for the bill.

The debate of the morning session came over House bill No. 226, to amend the act in regard to the office of State Accountant so that counties and cities may have their books examined by the State Auditor, and on their own request, have the use of his services for the examination of accounts of county and city officers. This was one of the famous "rotten" bills, which was introduced by the manager of the treasury lobby with a note saying that it was calculated to "disturb" all treasurers to have their books examined. The bill was proposed by Messrs. Field, Madison, and Leedy, of Page, who said their local treasurers did not desire any such bill passed. The roll call on the bill stood, ayes, 46; noes, 43, and not receiving fifty-one votes, it was declared rejected. It was later reconsidered, and after statements by Messrs. Lowry, Gregory, Page, Gordon and others in its favor, was passed, 57 to 15.

There was a spirited debate over the bill to provide separate boards, composed of one member from each county in the Congressional district, for each of the ten State agricultural high schools. Mr. White protested against adding 100 men to the already enormous number of men on the boards of this State. Mr. Gunn, who had been operated under the Board of Education, and the change, he asserted, would only mean a lobby of 100 men from every county in the State swarming over the next General Assembly, demanding funds to make each of the ten schools an agricultural college. It would create a condition worse than the famous normal school lobby, which has been one of the most insistent at this session, he asserted.

Judge Williams was opposed to the creation of any more boards, or the spending of school money for traveling and other expenses of 100 men unnecessarily. Messrs. Meetez and Houston declared the bill existing that provision had already been made for dormitories for these ten schools, and that the State's greatest need was proper education in agriculture. The answer was that these schools were not agricultural colleges, but simply ten county normal schools, with boarding departments attached. In the creation of which the State has favored ten counties at the expense of the ninety others. The bill was rejected, 46 to 40, and the House later refused to reconsider, 41 to 36.

The House passed the Grasty bill to create the Norfolk Normal School Board and to abolish the special boards of the Farmville, Fredericksburg, Harrisonburg and Radford Normal Schools. The bill was described by several speakers as the most progressive measure before this session. On several occasions there has been friction between the four normal schools, and each has maintained a lobby here through the General Assembly, with a view of securing increased appropriations and preventing the others from securing any special advantages. It will be the duty of the new school board to supervise all four institutions, to correlate their courses of study and entrance requirements, and to prepare and present to the General Assembly a proper budget of their financial needs.

At the night session the House of Delegates continued the consideration of House bills on their final passage.

House bill No. 218, imposing a license tax on all persons, firms and corporations engaged in the business of hauling over the public highways lumber, cordwood, railroad ties, piling logs, poles, ship timber or tan bark, the revenues to be applied to the county road fund of the county in which the license is obtained was debated at length, the patron, Mr. Gregory, declaring the bill and a number of members from lumber and railroad interests objecting. The bill was defeated, 12 to 25.

House bill No. 62, making it a misdemeanor for any person to entice, persuade, induce or procure a servant or employee to unlawfully leave the service of such master or employer and to make it a misdemeanor for any person to harbor and detain in his service, with knowledge of the violation of the provisions of this act, any person who has violated it, was defeated, 12 to 27. Mr. Gordon suggested that the bill might be construed to make the act of going on a peaceful strike a criminal offense. Mr. Horner defended the bill, declaring that it had no such intent.

By a vote of 19 to 30 the House rejected the Land bill to authorize the supervisors of counties to enact local and special legislation. The bill was regarded as a home-rule measure, giving county supervisors power to enact laws to those of the councils of towns and to relieve the General Assembly of a vast amount of special and local legislation usually passed only on the word of the local representative. Mr. Field opposed the bill as calculated to enable the supervisors to build up an invincible political machine.

House bill No. 57, to amend section 944 of the Code in relation to the report of receivers and trustees in cases in the location of new roads, caused a curious commotion when it appeared that it was intended to cut out a reference to orchards, which have heretofore been grouped with graveyards, yards and gardens, as exempt from inspection of public roads. The roll call showed, ayes, 61; noes, 18; and as the bill carried an emergency clause, taking effect from its passage and required a four-fifths vote, it was declared rejected.

The bill was reconsidered, the emergency clause eliminated and the bill again put on its passage, being adopted, ayes, 65; noes, 12.

House bill No. 143, amending section 944 of the Code, relating to the establishment and location of roads, was rejected, the roll call showing, ayes, 54; noes, 19. Having an emergency clause, it was declared rejected. The bill was reconsidered, amended and passed.

Adopts Torrens System.

Without a word of debate the Adams bill providing for the optional adoption of the Torrens system of land registration was put on its passage and passed, ayes, 55; noes, 4.

At 10:25 o'clock the roll call reached House bill No. 252, providing, on the conveyance by the Virginia Home and Industrial School of its property, real and personal, located in the County of Chesterfield, to the State of Virginia, that the State will assume control of the school, and that the school be incorporated in accordance with the charter of the corporation; and to assume any indebtedness of the school not to exceed $1,500, and for the sale of the property on certain conditions.

The patron, Mr. Gunn, offered verbal amendments making the bill conform to the bill already adopted by the Senate, which were adopted. An amendment offered by Captain Baker, of Chesterfield, "directing" instead of "permitting" the sale of the property, and the reinvestment of the proceeds in a similar institution at some other location, was rejected.

Mr. Gordon objected to voting away the people's money for this purpose. It seemed to him that the line of conservatism, Mr. Horner characterized the bill as an effort of the promoters to unload on the State a hornet's nest. The bill was adopted, ayes, 67; noes, 25.

Anti-Jug Bill Passed.

Without debate the Pennington bill regulating the shipment of liquor into dry territory was put on its passage and passed, 56 to 16. The bill is known as the anti-jug law, and is designed to restrict shipments of liquor from license territory to dry territory, to bona fide cash purchasers of no more than one gallon each. The roll call was as follows:

Ayes—Baker, Barley, Branscomb, Brewer, Brown, Cawthorn, Chalkley, Chapman, Cousins, Crockett, Dalton, Duke, Edwards, Grant, Gordon, Harris, Harrison, Hefflin, Horner, Huff, Johnson, Kent, Kinsey, Land, Lewis, Lincoln, Looney, Love, Lowry, Malbon, Meetez, Miller, Milstead, Noland, Norris, Page, Pennington, Powell, Radford, Rex, Johnston, R. E. Smith, Starnes, Steek, Stepienson, Suber, Taylor, Terrell, Walton, Weaver, H. C. White, Williams, Willis, Winston—56.

Nays—Birrell, Bonfant, Clement, Hasley, Field, Green, Gregory, Hobson, Hughes, Mangum, Myers, Nelson, Oliver, Price, Toney, Speaker Cox—16.

By a vote of 33 to 30, the House rejected House bill No. 181, to amend section 2755-C of the Code, providing for punishment of husbands deserting their wives or minor children in necessary circumstances without just cause. Objection was made to the provision of sentence to the public roads as excessive.

The House also rejected by a vote of 45 to 21, House bill No. 51, establishing a commission to study the educational systems of Virginia and other States and countries.

Mr. Montague, patron of the resolution, said that it had been introduced at the instance of Dr. J. A. C. Chandler, Superintendent of the Richmond Schools, following the Teachers' Conference in Lynchburg.

Judge Williams agreed that the school laws might need some revision, but was opposed to a junket for five commissioners, traveling about the country inspecting school systems.

Mr. Willis called up House bill No. 191, to compensate W. S. Cox and C. P. Cooke $600 each, as attorneys at law for services rendered as appointees of the Circuit Court of Carroll County in the defense of Sida Allen and Wesley Edwards.

On a roll call the vote resulted 47 to 10, and the bill was rejected, not receiving the required 51 votes, or a majority of the members elected. It was later reconsidered, and passed, 54 to 9.

For Ford Hotel Site.

Dr. Kent called up House bill No. 481, appropriating $180,000, whenever there shall be a surplus in the treasury, for the purchase from the city of the Ford Hotel lot as a site for a State office building.

Mr. Stearnes offered a substitute to purchase the Davis property, at Franklin and Governor Streets, which was rejected after Mr. Gunn stated that an option had been taken by the estate interests with a view of selling to the State at an advanced price.

The Kent bill was adopted, 54 to 4, after Mr. Hobson had stated that while the Ford lot was worth far more than the amount specified, the city might be induced to sell to the State if a handsome building is to be erected.

Mr. Oliver, by unanimous consent, secured the discharge of the committee, the waiving of the constitutional reading, and the passage of the bill, not yet numbered or printed, providing for
